

The Tragedie

Hast. His grace looks cherefully and smooth to day,
Thers some conceite or other likes him well,
When he doth bid good morrow with such a spirit,
I thinke there is neuer a man in Christendome,
That can lesse hide his loue or hate then hee:
For by his face straight shall you know his heart.

Dar. What of his heart perceiue you in his face,
By any likelihood he shewed to day?

Hast. Marry that with no man here he is offended;
For if he were, he would haue shewde it in his face.

Dar. I pray God he be not, I say.

Enter Gloucester.

Glo. I pray you all, what do they deserue
That do conspire my death with diuelish plots
Of damned witchcraft, and that haue preuaild
Vpon my body with their hellish charmes?

Hast. The tender loue I beare your grace my Lord
Makes me most forward in this noble presence,
To doome the offenders whatsoeuer they be:
I say my Lord they haue deserued death,

Glo. Then be your eyes the witnesse of this ill,
See how I am bewicht, behold mine arme
Is like a blasted sapling withered vp.
This is that Edwards wife, that monstrous witch,
Conforted with that harlot strumpet Skore,
That by their witchcraft thus haue marked me.

Hast. If they haue done this thing my gracious Lord.

Glo. If thou Protector of this damned strumpet,
Telft thou me of iffs? thou art a traitor.
Off with his head: Now by Saint Paul,
I will not dine to day I swere,
Vntill I see the same, some see it done:

The rest that loue me, come and follow me. Exeunt, maior

Hast. Wo, wo, for England, not a whit for me. Ca. with Hast.
For I too fond might haue preuented this:
Stanley did dreame the boare did race his helme,
But I disdained it and did scorne to flie,
Three times to day my footcloth horse did stumble,
And started when he lookt vpon the Tower,

Of Richard the Third.

As loth to beare me to the slaughter-house.
Oh now I warrant the Priest that spake to me,
I now repent I told the Pursuant,

As twere triumphing at mine enemies,
How they at Pomfret bloodily were butcherd,
And I my selfe secure in grate and fauour,
Oh Margret, Margret: now thy heauie curse
Is lightened on poore Hastings wretched head.

Ca. Dispatch my Lord, the Duke would bee at dinne
Make a short shrift he longs to see your head.

Hast. O momentary state of worlly men,
Which we more hunt for, then for the grace of heauen:
Who builds his hopes in the aire of your faire looks,
Liues like a drunken sayler on a mast,
Ready with euery nod to tumble downe
Into the fatall bowels of the deepe.

Come leade me to the blocke, beare him my head.
They smile at me, that shortly shall be dead Exe.

Enter Duke of Gloucester, and Buckingham, in armour

Glo. Come cousin, canst thou quake & change thy color
Murder thy breath in middle of a word,
And then begin againe and stop againe,
As if thou wert distraught and madd with terror,

Buc. Tus feare not me,
I can counterfeit the deepe Traedian,
Speake and looke backe and prie on euery side;
Intending deepe suspicion gastly looks
Are at my seruice like inforced smiles,
And both are ready in their offices
To grace my stratagemes. Enter Maior,

Glo. Here comes the maior.
Buc. Let me alone to entertaine him. Lord maior
Glo. Looke to the drawbrige there.

Buc. The reason we haue sent for you.
Glo. Catesby ouer looke the walles.

Buc. Marke, I heare a drumme,
Glo. Looke backe defend thee, here are enemies.

Buc. God and our innocency defend vs
Glo. O, O, be quiet, it is Catesby.

